

Job Description

Since 2009, NexOne has been a leading provider of software with a primary focus on Real Estate Technology including, Electronic Document Management (EDM), Transaction Management (TMS), electronic signing and accounting solutions enabling Real Estate professionals the ability to manage their business efficiently while effectively reducing costs.

This position is a unique opportunity to work in a rapidly growing company.

Responsibilities

- Responsible for building mobile applications to support our customers mobile needs.
- Define technical architecture for mobile applications based on current state and desired future state.
- Build and maintain automated test cases to ensure the stability and safety of the mobile applications in NexOne's ecosystem.
- Participate in the Usability and User Interaction design process with NexOne team.
- Investigate and research new emerging technology that may improve NexOne's ability to provide mobile tools to NexOne customers.

Job Requirements

- Post-secondary Degree or some level of post-secondary education
- Experience writing code in C# and .NET
- Experience using Xamarin to develop rich native applications for Android and iOS.
- Involvement in developing automated testing suite for regression testing mobile applications
- Demonstrated interest in User Experience design and development.
- Examples of previously developed applications in Xamarin
- Smart, ambitious and interested in working, learning and growing in a company!